SHREVE WINS, HEALY LOSES

Indianapolis and Pittsburg Quit Even in Their Two Labor-Day Contests.

Philadelphia and New York's Great Game-Boston Wins Twice and Chicago Once-Proctor Knott Takes Futurity Stakes.

The Indianapolis club won one game yesterday and should have won two, but it lost courage in the second contest and allowed the visitors to pull out a victory when it had the game well in hand. A little more backbone on the part of one or two members of the team would have saved it. The experiment of a morning game did not work very satisfactorily in the matter of attendance, as only 400 people saw the forenoon contest. In the afternoon, however, there was a crowd of about 2,500, so that the receipts for the entire day were very good. The fact that the parade occurred in the morning at the very time that the game was going on interfered considerably with the attendance. The street-cars were also blocked in some instances, and these who wanted to go could not find transportation.

Shreve deserves the chief credit for the victory of the home team. For six innings the game was full of excitement, inasmuch as the home wam had but a slender lead, but in the "fatal moventh" Galvin was touched up for three runs, although none of them would have counted had Sunday accepted a chance for a very difficult fly which was offered him-so difficult that he could not be scored an error for missing it. After that the game was tame. Shreve pitched finely throughout, three of the hits made against him being weak drives. At one or two critical periods he did his most effective work/ vindicating Manager Spence's opinion of the young man-that he is brim full of "sand." The Pennsylvanians did not put up quite the brilliant fielding game that they generally do. Sunday muffed two flies, although in both instances he was running at full speed, and Miller made ceveral overthrows to second. The home team's work was excellent. Denny's three errors being excusable in a great measure.

There was the continual talking by the members of the two teams, with occasional contributions from the bleaching boards. Miller acted as end man for Pittsburg, and Glasscock for Indianapolis, with umpire Daniels as a kind of interlocutor. The latter made no attempt to stop the talk, as both players and audience seemed to be enjoying it. Galvin and Beckley lent valuable assistance to Miller, although the little fellow did not appear to need it, and Mc-Geachy and Shreve acted as Glasscock's lieutenants in the lively war of words. When Glasscock was thrown out at second in the second inning, the Smoky City battery gave him a great turning over. Galvin shouting with affected disgust, "Pshaw, you can't run as fast as I can;" and when Galvin, later in the game, struck out twice, Glasscock insisted that the umpire was not giving him [Galvin] a fair show.
The bleachers kept Miller's tongue going, and the little fellow always had a reply ready for any one who spoke to him. He is a great favor-ite here, or the method of coaching which he sometimes adopts would be aggravating to the

In the first inning Hines and Denny furnished easy outs, and Galvin's amile had on full-sail until Scery made a little hit over first base. The fleet outfielder stole second, and persuaded Miller to throw so hard that the ball was not even stopped by Sunday; Seery speeding all the way home. This was a cheap run, and gave the home team a decided preetige, although the visitors started off as if they might do something. Sunday got in just such a hit as Seerya slow fly over first. He made fully a balf dozen starts to steal second before the batters would give him a chance, as they kept hitting fouls, but when he did get away he crawled up out of the dust at second base and heard Daniels say "safe." There was, however, one out, and Sunday then stole third in order to come in on a sacrifice, but Smith's fly to Hines was too short for him to take the risk, and he stayed at third and watched Beckley send a longer fly into the same field. After that the visitors did not have a good show for a run until the fifth. In the meantime the tail-enders had added a run. Glasscock, in the fourth inning, after one out, sent a liner to center field which Sunday muffed after a desperate rue Beckley made a failure in trying to stop McGeachy's grounder; on Schoeneck's grounder to Kuehne the Pitteburgs tried to make a double play, but Smith tkrew low to first, which put Glasscock at third and the giant first baseman on first, with McGeachy forced out at second. Schoeneck stole to second, and when Miller threw to Smith Glasscock came home. This gave the home team a lead of two runs. In the fifth Kuehne began with a hit and Coleman subsequently reached first on Denny's error of judgment, but Cleveland and Galvin struck out and Sunday flew out to Hines. The local club made three runs in the seventh on hits by Schoeneck, Buckley, Shreve and Denny, and Hines's sacrifice. Sunday made Pittsburg's only run in the eighth, when he beat the bail to first on a grounder to Daily, went to second on a wild pitch, to third on Miller's hit and home on Beckley's sacrifice. The Afternoon Game. The Indianapolis club hit Morris hard in the early portion of the afternoon game, and it looked like another victory for it. But Pittsburg kept her courage, and, taking advantage of the over-anxiousness of the local men, finally won the game. The Smoky City men batted Healy fairly hard all through the game. He seemed to lack confidence in himself, and it was clear that the Pittsburgs were confident of being able to bat him on account of the manner in which they faced him. However, the game would have been won by the home team as matters were but for a palpably bad decision by Umpire Daniels. It occurred in the fourth inning. Seery, the first batter, sent a line ball down the right foul line, on which he easily reached second base. The ball had very little curve, and it was easy to watch its course. It lighted probably an inch or two inside the line, raising a slight dust at the time from the chalk which always lies close to the line, . as well as directly upon it. Daniels, to everybody's surprise, called the ball a foul. He probably did so on the theory that the ball lighted on the foul-line and bounded into foul territory; but in doing this, even, he was giving all the doubt to the pitcher. and not to the batter. The only question was whether the ball lighted directly on the line or inside of it. Everyone who watched the ball knows it did not light outside of the line. Therefore the umpire was deciding against two rules in giving the hit foul-one is the rule to favor batters in case of doubt and the other is to give the home club, if anything, the benefit of close decisions. If there was any doubt at all concerning the play it was as to whether the ball lighted inside the line or upon it. The majority of those who were seated in place in the grand-stand where they could see the play distinctly were strongly of the opinion that the ball lighted inside and clear of the line. The hit. had it been allowed by the umpire, would have won the game, as Glasscock followed with another two-bagger. This also proved to be the turning point in the game, as the Indianapo lis players thereafter batted as if they had lost ill hope of winning the game. The game started as usual with the home club at the bat. Hines made a hard drive to Cleveland and was thrown out at first. Depny. however, got in a single and started to steal second. Smith ran to cover the base and Buckley took advantage of the opportunity to guide a grounder in the place he vacated, reaching first in safety and sending Denny to third.

Buckley stole second, and Glasscock made a timely lik which sent both mes home

Glasscock reached second on the throw-in and scored on McGeschy's grounder, of which Cleveland made a bluff at stopping, but nothing more.
This gave three runs and ought to have insured an easy victory, but the plucky fight which the visitors made seemed to rattle the home team and it let the advantage gradually slip away. Sunday began for the visitors with a liner which got past Seery, enabling the star runner of the profession to get to second base. He scored on an infield sacrifice and Smith's long fly to Mc-Geachy. After two outs in the third Buckley Geachy. After two outs in the third Buckley still further increased the lead of his side by a terrific home-run drive over the left-field fence. The Pittsburg's stepped up to the mark and added a run on Sunday's infield hit, which he beat to first, and on Buckley's wild throw in a hopeless attempt to catch him, Fields's single and Denny's unexpectedly bad play. Fields had started to steal second, but was cut off and then played back in order to get the fielders to sup him played back in order to get the fielders to run him down, which they started to do. Denny, however, kept his eye on Sanday, at third, and when he thought the little fellow was far enough away he shot the ball toward Buckley. Not only was the throw too late, but it went wild and Sunday scored. After that the home team batted weakly and into the air, with the exception referred to in the fourth inning. The Pitteburge gradually crawled up, tied, and in the tenth inning passed them. Kuehne scored in the fourth on two-baggers, by himself and Cleveland. The same player tied the score in the eighth. He forced out Beckley, who had made a beautiful bit, went to second on a passed ball, Daily misunderstanding the pitcher's sign, and scored on Cleveland's hit to left, although he would have been easily thrown out by Seery had not the ball taken a bad bound. The game was won in the tenth. Smith, the first batter, was given a base on balls, reached second on Dalrymple's sacrifice, and scored on Kuehne's hit to center. Kuehne has won more games from the Indian-

ELEVEN INNINGS WITHOUT A RUN. New York, Sept. 3.—The ball game at the Polo grounds this afternoon was a pitchers' battle, both Sanders and Keefe holding the batters in subjection. Umpire Kelly called the game at the end of the eleventh inning on account of darkness, not a run being scored. The game was rather slow, and there were no really brilllant plays outside of the work of the pitchers.

Base-Ball Notes.

Col. C. C. Matson was a spectator at the aft-Schoeneck and Beckley did some great firstbase playing in the afternoon game. The big fellow was liberally applauded. In one inning, when Cleveland came to bat in a critical place and struck out, a man on the bleaching boards shouted "Hurrah for Harri-The Indianapolis and Pitteburgs teams play another game this afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock. The pitchers will probably be Boyle

Some of these days the Indianapolis club will be favored with the same partial umpiring at home that it has to contend with when away from home, and then it will win a great many Seery was in hard luck yesterday afternoon In addition to the hit Daniels deprived him of, the little outfielder sent a liner over the rightfield fence in the seventh inning, not a great distance south of the foul line.

Bassett's absence yesterday, due to a very sore finger, weakened the team. Denny would not have made the wild throw to third, yesterday, had he been accustomed to the position. It is a little up hill from third base to second, and this, doubtless, made him throw high.

Hines's hearing is a great misfortune to him. He got a very tardy start after Kuehne's base hit in the tenth inning, it appearing that he did not see it leave his bat. Had Healy been willing to risk a badly-injured leg he might have stopped the ball, as it was driven squarely at

A correspondent writes that at a game in Boileville, the other day. Dugan, the pitcher of the Belleville team, struck out twenty-four of the Clayton batters, who batted but five fair balls off him during the game. That is a pretty good record, even against an amateur team. Dugan is the pitcher of the DePauw University Club, and is regarded by some who have seen him as a coming star twirler.

Not only did Daniels's decision regarding Seery's hit cost the home club at least one run. but a refusal to call a foul on Fields in the third gave the visitors their run in that inning. It was a foul tip, which Daily caught, but Daniels nad called it a strike, and refused to change it, although appealed to by the Indianapolis players. Several in the grand-stand heard the foul tip, but it was not audible from the press-

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.-The crack trapshots of America and Graham, the crack shot of England, are here to-night, to attend Bandle's fourth annual tournament, which begins tomorrow and lasts four days. This afternoon Budd, of Iowa, and Graham, of England, shot at 25 blue rocks, holding the gun in one hand, and scored: Budd, 13; Graham, 15. Immediately after, Budd scored 21 and McDuff 22, under the same conditions.

Proctor Knott Wins the Futurity Stakes. NEW YORK, Sept. 3. - In the hotels, clubs and sporting resorts men are to-night assuring each other that this will go into history as a red-letter day for the American turf-the day upon which, at Sheepshead bay, the Kentucky flyer, Proctor Knott, won the Futurity stakes, worth $50,000. Forty-five thousand people went down to the race track. Never before has so great a throng been within the gates of the Coney Island Jockey Club's course, and never in the last twenty-five years has so much interest been manifested in a horse-race. It was a representative New York erowd, and its personnel could not be duplicated in any other American center. There were hundreds of others than New Yorkers upon the grounds. Boston sent a large delegation, and Philadelphia a still larger one. Baltimore was well represented, and so was Washington, while every town and hamlet between Portland and Pittsburg had some one present to tell the story to his less fortunate fellows on his return home. Eighty-four book-makers were doing business under paternity at the gigantic shed. There were also three presecution.

straight and three place mutual machines in op-eration, and the American auction pool-seller had more men assembled about him than he ever addressed before. It is safe to say that not far from $1,000,000 changed hands through these different wagering instrumentalities this afternoon. The condition of the track was eagerly asked for. It was found to be as near perfect as possible. The old track was in ideal condition, but there were irregularities in the new portion of what is now called "the Futurity Course," due to the fact that it is newly made and is alternately hard and soft in spots. First Race-Three-fourths of a mile. Brittanie won in 1:14 4-5; Sam Harper, jr., second, Laredo, third.

Second Race—Great fall selling stakes; one and one-eighth mile. Frank Ward won in 1:50; Bordelaise, second, Lela May, third.

Third Race—One and one-fourth mile. Eg-mont won in 2:08; Badge second, Lelex third. Fourth Race—The Futurity stakes; three-fourths of a mile. Starters: The Lioness, Rip-staff, Galena, Erie, Princess Bowling, Proctor Knott, Auricoma, Senorita, Limbo, Forest King, Salvator, Philander, Lady Pulsifer, Village Maid. Now came the great event of the day and of the season. The judge turned the hands of the clock to 4:10 as its startingitime, and then there was a decided rush. Those who had their minds made up scurried in hot haste to the paddock to piace their money on their favorites to the best advantage, while the others sought first the saddling paddock in search of the very latest information before betting their money. Never was bride arrayed with greater care than were the fourteen youngsters who were to strive for the greatest prize ever offered for two-year-olds in America. Erie was the first to start to the post, and, as the others, by twos, and threes, and singly, followed him, great surprise was expressed that the contestants were not paraded, as customary. When the horses were at the post Mr. Caldwell said: "Now, boys, don't break until you are all together. Palmer, don't you give me any trouble to-day. Be quiet and don't break zway needlessly." They skirmished around a moment or two,

and got into line immediately after, and instantly the flag fell and they were off, with Forest King a trifle in front of Tipstaff, with Proctor Knott, Auricoma, Limbo, Senorita and Salvator together, and Eric and Village Maid last Forest King and Tipstaff immediately began racing, and were but heads apart in front at the first furlong post. They raised a tremendous cloud of dust as they came on, with Proctor Knott and Galon running next the leaders, Auricoma just behind, and the Lioness, Princess Bowling and Village Maid bringing up the rear. As they came to the bend at the head of the homestretch Galen was making the pace, and those along the rail were shouting, "Galen wins." Proctor Knott was running easy, but laying back a bit, with Auricoma, Limbo and Salvator bunched, and McLaughlin whipping Aurioms with might and main. At the last fur'one post Salvator was showing the way, and there were shouts of "Salvator wins." At the last sixteenth post Barnes gave Proctor Knott a shaking up. He responded nobly, and with a gallant spurt he dashed to the front, and smid the cheers and shouts of the delighted spectators, won by a neck in 1:154. Salvator, second, was a length before Galen, third. Princess Bowling, Lady Pulai-fer, Eric, Auricoma, Forest King Senorita, Tipstaff, Philander, The Lioness, Limbo, and Village Maid finished as named. The instant the horses were past the judges stand there was a great rush to the track, and the victor was so pressed by those anxious to get near him and congratulate his jockey that it was with difficulty he could get to the weighing scales. After he left for the paddock he was followed by hundreds, who seemed delighted to be near enough to touch his clothes. The win-uer paid $12.10 straight and $11.40 for place. Salvator paid $18.54. Immediately after the race Hamilton, who rode Salvator, claimed that he had been fouled by Proctor Knott, but the judges did not allow the claim. The timers were unable to take the fractional time, which was 21 seconds slower than the record time made on an elliptical course, in Louisville, five years ago. The actual value of the stake was $43,375, but the second and third horses get large shares out of that.

Fifth Race-One mile. Niagara won in 1:43 2-5; Pasha second, Kaleidoscope third. Sixth Race-Three-fourths of a mile. Strideaway won in 1:46; Volunteer second, Daniella

LITCHMAN DEFENDS HIMSELF.

The Records of the Kuights of Labor Declare His Honesty and Integrity. Philadelphia Special. General Secretary Charles H. Litchman, of the Knights of Labor, in answer to the abusive religion in the Democratic press of his course in leaving the Knights and taking up the cause of Harrison and Morton, and especially referring to a New York Democratic paper of to-day that devotes a column and a haif of abuse to place him in the light of a defaulter, said this afternoon: "The whole thing was as falsa and as vile as the man who wrote it. Let that paper, or any other respectable journal, put the charges in such a shape that an action will lie in the court, and I will give them an opportunity to show the truth of what they charge. Until they are manly enough to do that I must, I suppose, for the future suffer as I have during the past eight years, from the malignant slanders invented without a shadow of foundation. While holding the position of general secretary I have passed by these attacks in silence, knewing that I could successfully meet on the floor of the General Assembly any representative who dared attack me, and caring nothing for any one else on the outside. I am now placed so that I can speak freely and fully. This I propose to do whenever occasion requires. I will guarantee to pay $500 to any man who can show that I have dishonestly used or appropriated to my own benefit a single dol-lar of the funds of any organization, political, labor or otherwise, in which I have held a fiduciary position. It is true I am a bankrupt to-day. My fidelity in the labor movement made me so, and had I used for the benefit of capital but a little of the brain and ability that have consecrated to the cause of labor during the last fourteen years, I would not to-day be a bankrupt. Every dollar I owe, however, will be paid, if I live.

"As to the charge that I was denounced by the General Assembly of the Knights of Labor in Philadelphia, in 1884, as a defaulter and a thief, by James E. Quinn, of New York, I will simply quote from the records of the General Assembly:

"Representative Litchman, of Massachusetts, hav-ing occupied the floor to make a motion, Representa-tive Quinn, of New York, objected to Representative Litchman being entitled to the floor, on the ground of being a defaulter. "The Chair decided the objection not in order, as Representative Litchman had paid to the executive board the full amount ordered by the last General Assembly, and he knew of no charge against the "So far as my former services as general secretary are concerned, and in reply to any criticism against my honesty or integrity, I give this verbatim from the records: "Resolved, That the thanks of this General Assembly be tendered to Grand Secretary Litchman for the satisfactory manner in which he has rendered his account at this session. "On motion of Representative McFadden, of Pennsylvania, the following was also unanimously adopted 'Resolved, that this General Assembly most heartily expresses its confidence in the ability and honesty o the retiring grand secretary, Charles H. Litchman.' "These resolutions were adopted at the session of the General Assembly at Detroit, in 1881. when my first term as general secretary ended. "During this present campaign I exercise my right as an American citizen, and I never served labor so faithfully, in my judgment, as I shall when I do all in my power to break down the possibility of success of the Democratic party in its advocacy of the British free-trade system." Mr. Litchman had before him while he spoke

William Wilkison died yesterday in his seventy-fourth year at his home, No. 286 North New Jersey street. He had been a resident of the city for over fifty years, baving begun his career here by driving a stage coach. Since that time, by his perseverence, he has accumulated considerable wealth. He leaves a wife and a daughter, Mrs. Wm. M. Haag. Rev. Henry S. Dane, the oldest minister of daughter, six miles west of Mooresville, on Satorder last, and his funeral occurred on Sunday, from the Methodist Church in Mooresville, Rev. W. R. Halstead preaching the sermon. Mr. Dane was eighty-four years of age, and had lived a life of the greatest usefulness to mankind. During the later years of his life he earned the name of the "conference shouter" by his displays of religious ferver at the sessions of the Indiana Conference, which he always made it a point to attend. His tottering form and buoyant spirit will be missed at the coming session of that conference.

A DULL NIGHT IN COUNCIL

The Regular Calendar Occupies the Member's Attention in a Short Session.

The Common Council held a comparatively quiet and uninteresting meeting last night. It first considered the awards of contracts for the grading and paving of certain streets and alleys in the city, including the proposed improvements of Garfield Park. The report of the committee was, after much discussion, adopted. The question of constructing a bridge over Pleasant run, in Garfield Park, stirred up considerable spatting back and forth, the principal objection urged being from an economic stand-point. It was finally passed, however. The Mayor named Conneilmen Dunn, Hicklin, Kelley, Markey and Pearson as constituting the committee on legis lation, as provided for at the last meeting by a motion of Councilman Pearson. Upon motion of Councilman Thaiman the question of locating and taking up of certain fire-plugs throughtout the city was referred to a committee consisting of the city fire engineer. the regular fire committee and the city attorney, with the power to act. The city clerk submitted a report of orders drawn on the city treasury. amounting to a total of $31,999.54, for the month of August. The board of public improvements presented its report showing, a total expenditure of $4,003.90 for the past month.

Councilman Trusler then made a report of the work done by the committee on light, and stated that the Brush Electric-light Company is not yet ready to begin operations for supplying the one hundred lights provided for in the contract. It has, however, received sixty poles, and the work will begin as soon as practicable. The lighting will be commenced on Washington street, a light being placed at each street intersection from the river to the Deaf and Dumb Institution, which will require twenty-three lights. It is further the intention to light every street intersection on Meridian street, from Washington to Second or Third.

Miscellaneous business was taken up on Councilman Cummings offering a motion to provide for the introduction of natural gas in the City Hospital, but the Council was informed that bids were advertised for some three weeks ago and the contract awarded to the Consumers' Trust. To hasten this movement, however, Councilman Cummings's motion was carried upanimously. Councilman Swain introduced a motion providing for the sprinkling of the streets leading to the Exposition Building during State fair week, which was referred to the committee on streets and alleys and chief fire engineer. A resolution from the Board of Trade was presented, urging that the city government join it is an invitation to the G. A. R. National Encompment of 1889 in this city, and that the neccessary expenses be guaranteed, the invitation to be presented to the National Encampment at Columbus through the city's representatives. Councilmen Thalman, Cummings and Hicklin were appointed a committee to confer with the Board of Trade on the subject. The rest of the evening was devoted to the reading a second and third time of the usual run of ordinances relating to minor improvements in streets and alleys.

AMUSEMENTS.

"DAVY CROCKET" AT THE PARK. "Davy Crockett," a comedy drama of much naturalness and interest, was revived at the Park yesterday, and two audiences that filled the theater testified to its popularity and the excellence of its presentation by Mr. Mayo and his company. He is the same careful, painstaking actor, and his Crockett is a characterization of high order. Master Bertie Feibleman who is always cleves, did Bob Crockett excel lently, and Miss Prosser was pretty and intelligent in the opposite part to the hero. Miss Buller, Mr. Colton, Mr. Keefe and others filled the Indiana Conference, died at the home of a | out the cast capably. "Davy Crockett" will be seen until Thursday, and for the rest of the week Mr. Mayo's new play, "The Silver Age."

COMING OF THE MINSTRELS. McNish, Ramza & Argo's minstrels are to be at the Grand Friday and Saturday next. The company is newly organized, and has a large corps of comedians and singers, who appear in various povelties. The sale of seats will begin Thursday morning.
